Gentlemen:

I have been informed that you specialize in the purchasing of various rare coins. I am sending you several coins, which are about two thousand years old. Should these coins prove valuable, please notify me.

Yours truly,
D. Klakovich.

Dear Sir:

Your letter and the coins at hand. We do not buy coins except very fine specimens. Your Roman coins have next to no value. I should say if you got 15-20¢ for all of them you are lucky, as they are all common and in very poor condition. You have also cleaned them which would spoil their value, if they did have any. I cannot see why you should have spent $1.09 to send these on registered and insured. As you did not send return postage we are holding these here. On receipt of 10¢ we will return them to you by parcel post insured.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

I am sending you
the dime (.10¢) for you to send my money back.

Please insure the money for $1.00 C.O.D.
For I will pay it.

Yours truly
